An Evening of Cocktails & Conversation

with

WNYC radio host Brian Lehrer

&

Martha Honey & William H. Durham

Co-Founders & Co-Directors, Center for Responsible Travel (CREST)

Martha Honey, Ph.D. is the author of Ecotourism and Sustainable Development: Who Owns Paradise?

William Durham, Ph.D. is Bing Professor in Human Biology and Anthropology at Stanford University.

As the world's largest industry, reaching into the remotest and greenest corners of the world, travel can do irreversible damage to ecosystems and cultures. Or it can deliver enormous benefits – providing sound employment, encouraging conservation, and financing essential services (schools, health clinics, etc.). The goal of the Center for Responsible Travel (CREST) is to encourage the right kind of travel.

At this gathering you will learn about CREST and its signature program, Travelers' Philanthropy (www.travelersphilanthropy.org), designed to help travelers give back to the places and people they have journeyed so far to enjoy.

When: 6 – 8 pm, Tuesday, June 16, 2009

Where: 200 East 65th Street, Apt. 37 South,
(between 2nd and 3rd Avenue) New York, NY 10021
(home of Lisa Applebaum & George Haddad)

Suggested minimum donation: $100
